The Graduate School of Business & Public Policy at Naval Postgraduate School invites applications for an open rank, tenure-track position in budgeting and financial management. Candidates must qualify to join the faculty as active teachers and scholars. They should possess a terminal degree, such as a PhD, or its equivalent, in a relevant discipline, including (but not limited to) public policy, political science, business administration, or public administration. We are particularly interested in scholars with strong theoretical, methodological, and applied interest in national defense, federal government, and/or international financial management. The successful applicant must be able to teach core courses in budgeting within the graduate program, in addition to one or more other courses within the curriculum. Applicants who have recently received a PhD (or expect to earn the degree before the start of the 2016-17 academic year) or who are already established scholars are encouraged to apply. The starting date for the candidate can range from July 1, 2016 to December 1, 2016.

Faculty members have access to the computing and library resources of a major research university, including financial databases such as Compustat. NPS follows a quarter system and the normal teaching workload for business faculty is four courses a year. The Graduate School of Business and Public Policy at the Naval Postgraduate School is accredited by both NASPAA and AACSB.

Minimum qualifications:

- A PhD (or its equivalent) in a relevant discipline, including (but not limited to) public policy, political science, business administration, or public administration.
- Research commensurate with the length of the professional experience.
- Evidence of aptitude to teach graduate students.
• Must be able to complete and successfully pass a security background investigation.
• While US Citizenship is not a requirement, it is considered in the hiring process.

Applications must include research and teaching statements, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and information regarding three (3) references. Review of applications will continue until November 30, 2015.

Applications should be sent to:

Dean William Gates
