

NAVAL POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL

The Space Systems Academic Group at the Naval Postgraduate School has an ongoing need for research assistants to support research projects of national interest. These are excepted civil service, term positions.

Desired qualifications: bachelor's degree, proficiency in office productivity software, demonstrated team skills and initiative, excellent written and verbal communication skills, familiarity and experience in experimental and hands-on laboratory techniques, especially, but not limited to, electrical engineering, Astronautical engineering, computer science and programming, structures and mechanical engineering, and small satellite design, analysis, and testing.

To learn more about the current opportunities, please email a cover letter and resume to jhnewman@nps.edu or call 831---656---2487.

Professor James H. Newman
Space Systems Academic Group
Naval Postgraduate School

Salary will be competitive and dependent upon qualifications. Consideration of applications is ongoing and applicants will be selected as opportunities arise.

NPS is an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer.